History is the study of the causes and consequences of changes in human events across time. Like other liberal arts disciplines, historical study trains students to think critically by reading, writing about, and discussing the human experience. History stimulates a deeper understanding of today's cultures by considering them in a global context. The study of history helps students develop powers of judgment and expression that will propel them to future leadership positions in public service, international organizations, communications, education, business, or the professions.

The department offers a broad-based Bachelor of Arts major, which includes foreign language requirements. It also offers two Bachelor of Science options. One emphasizes training in the social sciences and includes requirements in statistics as well as a minor in fields such as economics, political science, or sociology. The other option prepares students in public history fields such as museum administration, archival management, or historic preservation. The department also participates in a variety of interdisciplinary programs, including East Asian studies; cinema studies; environmental studies; international affairs; Jewish studies; Latino/a, Latin American, and Caribbean studies; and women's studies.

All history majors take introductory courses in European, world, American, Middle Eastern, or East Asian history; an introductory course in historical methods; as well as advanced courses in a range of historical eras and regions. Students focus their studies by choosing a cluster of four courses in a particular geographical area, time period, or theme. Majors complete their studies with two research seminars. Honors study is strongly encouraged for eligible students. Advanced undergraduates have the opportunity to participate in individual directed study with members of the faculty on topics of mutual interest. Cooperative education placements, fieldwork, internships, and other experiential learning activities are also available.

The Department of History offers qualified undergraduates the opportunity to pursue a combined BA/MA or BS/MA degree in five years, upon the approval of the department. Students with a minimum 3.330 cumulative GPA and minimum 3.500 GPA in required history courses may request admission to the five-year MA program in history. See the history Web site or the Director of Undergraduate Studies in History for details.

Undergraduates who plan to teach in the public schools may combine history with education courses that can lead to state certification in Massachusetts. Those intending to teach in private secondary schools need not be certified by the state. Teaching positions in colleges and universities require advanced degrees at the graduate level. See pages 357–371 for course descriptions.

The human services program is an interdisciplinary major that includes courses in human services, psychology, sociology, political science, and other related fields. The mission of the human services program is to provide students with the theoretical and skill-based background necessary to practice in macro-, mezzo-, and microarenas such as political advocacy, community development, and direct service. Students take basic foundation and skills courses and complete an intensive fieldwork internship in community agencies and/or government organizations. The major may lead to careers in many diverse areas of the helping professions or to graduate programs in social work, counseling, rehabilitation, and law. Students who major in human services select specializations in areas that they wish to pursue further. Students can pursue positions in both public and private agencies, including social service and welfare agencies, mental health settings, programs for youth, halfway houses, rape crisis and domestic violence centers, drug treatment institutions, and criminal justice settings. Students can work in a number of capacities as counselors, community organizers, administrators in human services agencies, and as fund-raisers for social programs. Students in the major have special opportunities to participate in the Human Services Organization, the student-led club. See pages 355–357 for course descriptions.

The major in international affairs provides students with the opportunity to develop a deep understanding of both regional and global issues. It is intended to prepare students for the interdependent world in which they will live, work, compete, and cooperate upon graduation.

Students wishing to complete the major in international affairs take twelve courses; in addition, students must fulfill an International Experience requirement and the Bachelor of Arts Core for Specified Programs for Social Science Majors curriculum. Students majoring in international affairs should maintain a minimum 3.000 GPA until the beginning of their international experience. Current Northeastern students wishing to declare an international affairs major must have a minimum 3.000 GPA. See pages 371–372 for course descriptions.
